

Four cards are dealt in the first two rounds; five cards are dealt in the last one

The game is played clockwise; the player on the dealer's left begins the round

The game is played in partnership by four players that are divided in two teams

Game Objective

To land your stones from your home to the base, then move them from the base to the safe zone

After entering the safe zone, continue the game assisting your partner in order to end the game and win

Card Roles

Can land your stone from your home to the base, or move your stone 1 or 11 steps forwards

Can move your stone 10 steps forwards, or force the person on your left to burn one of their cards

Can either land a stone on the base or move your stone 13 steps forwards and kills all the stones that are bypassed, except if a stone is on its base

Can divide 7 steps over two stones

Can move any stone 5 steps forwards, unless the stone is on its base

Switches the places of any of your stones with another player's stone. Neither of the switched stones can be on a base

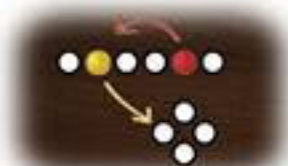

Moves a stone 4 steps backwards only

Special Cases

If your stone lands on another stone, the latter will be sent back to its home

✗ If a stone is its own base, it cannot be bypassed, killed, or switched

✓ The number 5 card can be used on a partner's (or enemy's) stone

! In case two stones are sequentially placed, the stone in front is can be bypassed or killed only by using a King card

To enter the safe zone, the card's value must be enough for the stone to enter; you cannot go over the path again
